Germany in a memorandum transmitted to Secretary Lansing by Ambassador Bernstorff concedes that existing international law does not regulate the use of submarines, and indicates a willingness to conduct undersea warfare in accordance with the law existing at the outbreak of war, providing Great Britain and her allies will regard the same laws.

creeping close to American homes, enticed a number of civilians into the open with English-spoken invitations. A number of fatalities are attributed Leslie Wagoner, the young man tried for detaining Miss Edith Pepper, a young daughter of Lawson Pepper of Carl, was found guilty of assault and fined $350 and 60 days in jail. The other charge was a felony. Wagoner is about 19 years old and is married. The girl is 13 and testified that Wagoner put his arms around her and made improper proposals to her, which she repulsed.

Mr. Roherer and Miss Holler have married in New York which ought to insure a little noise.—Elizabethtown News.There is no doubt that a large German fleet has been cruising in the North Sea this week, afterwards returning to its base.With the important sections struck out by the Senate back in the bill the Kentucky House Wednesday passed the Knight Workmen's Compensation Act.The senate has gone on record 26 to 8 in favor of submitting woman suffrage to the people. It had already been killed in the House and is not likely to get another vote.A party of forty-five Armenian refugees, driven from their homes by the Turks last July and supported since by the American Relief Committee at Port Said, arrived in New York this week.Approximately a billion and a half dollars for new ships and an annual upkeep charge of $760,000,000 is what Admiral Fletcher, commanding the Atlantic fleet, estimates it would cost to carry out the Navy General Board's recommendation to give America the most powerful fighting fleet in the world by 1925.The grand jury at Youngstown, O., ended spectacularly its investigation of riots in January by returning indictments against Judge Elbert H.
Gray, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation and six steel companies. The indictments charge conspiring to fix wages of labor and prices of iron and steel.Despite the perils of submarine warfare 400,000 persons crossed the Atlantic between American and European ports as passengers last year.
Figures assembled in the Bureau of Navigation show that 250,000 of them traveled on vessels owned by the belligerents. Slightly more than half the Atlantic travelers were eastbound and Italian ships carried more than the vessels of any other nation. Only 38,000 of the passengers traveled first class.
Two hundred and seventy thousand went in the steerage.

COULDN'T KILL MULE

"OLD TOBE" NONE THE WORSE
FOR LONG IMMERSION.Incident of the Civil War Shows How Hard It Is to Separate Government Pack Animal From Uncle Sam's Rations.Z. P. Hotchkiss, adjutant of Phil
Sheridan post G. A. R. of Oak Park, Ill., tells the following experience with a government mule. As an army telegrapher Mr. Hotchkiss was attached to the staff of General Canby in the final Mobile campaign."The entire outfit for the construction of the army telegraph lines," says Mr. Hotchkiss, "was carried on the backs of forty pack mules. A coil of half a mile of wire hung upon each side of the saddle."There were six young operators, one from each corps, mounted on horses. To these boys had been intrusted the government cipher and knowledge of the advance movement of the troops. These secrets were safe, as none of the young fellows ever betrayed a trust."For the Mobile campaign the mules were drilled in the streets of New Orleans to follow the lead of the mule-teer or the horse of the chief operator."One day, while following in the rear of the army up the peninsula from Dauphin Island, the entire train was trailing along in the rear of the chief operator, who knew nothing about ocean tides. The reel mule,
'Old Tobe,' from whose back was uncoiled the wire, was in advance and followed his leader into an arm of the Gulf of Mexico. The operator's horse was soon beyond his depth and was swimming for shoal water when it was seen that 'Old Tobe' had sunk beneath his heavy load. The muleteer swam his horse to where the reel mule had gone down, and after diving twice, came up gasping for breath."The fool critter is walking toward the Spanish fort," he said, 'but I'll get him this time, sure.' He dove again, and with his clasp knife cut the belly-band of the submerged mule and rid the animal of his load. 'Old Tobe' floated to the surface, shook the water from his ears, was towed ashore, pumped out, and a few hours later was again making the march for Fish river.
Save for dragging a little, he showed little sign of his experience; but he had been under water long enough to have killed anything but a government mule."Some 200 army operators, who, though many of their number were killed or taken prisoners of war, are ineligible to a government pension, are the recipients of private pensions in their old age from their comrade, Andrew Carnegie.

Heredity and Eugenics.

Only a misguided enthusiast, says
the Journal of the American Medical Association would venture to make great claims at the present time for the possible future usefulness of applied eugenics. The doctrines of heredity on which the new postulates are based must first be subjected to critical investigation. The limitations of the practical aspects of eugenics must be clearly formulated and emphasized. It is well enough to maintain in a general way that vitality is partly inherited and partly acquired, and that "a sound physical and mental inheritance is a greater asset than the inheritance of extraneous advantages like wealth." Many individuals, however, have assumed that the new science is primarily intended to foster a scheme of general governmental interference with marriage. As a matter of fact, the most earnest students of the subject have at best hoped to promote the gradual establishment of standards in public opinion.

Now We Have It.

The earth passed between the planet Saturn and the sun January 4. It passed between Neptune and the sun January 7. There being no planets in position to force the earth out from the sun and cause cold weather after February 16 these three planets will repel the earth toward the sun, or rather against the sun's repulsion, from February 16 to April 26, which will cause spring to begin practically about February 16, and will cause warmer and drier weather than usual from February 16 to April 26, 1916.During that warm period the principal cool changes of weather will occur just after the moon or any planets pass between the earth and other planets or visible stars near the eclipse. When precipitation occurs it will be near the dates of these planetary, lunar and stellar conjunctions.

Birds' Nests Cause Fire.

Birds' nests under the roof of a two-story corrugated iron structure at Twentieth street and Sedgley avenue, Philadelphia, caused a fire when they became ignited by sparks from hot sand in a mixer. The roof of the building was damaged about $200.Nests are frequently found under the roof and they are destroyed every few days in order to prevent a fire.
They were cleaned away recently, but the birds quickly rebuilt them.

VARIETIES OF STOVES

NATIONS HAVE DIFFERENT METH-ODS OF KEEPING WARM.Russian Sleeps Over Brick Contrivance in Which Slow Fire Burns—Holland's Heating Arrangement
Perhaps Most Economical.The stove is, comparatively speaking, a new invention. So late as the time of Queen Elizabeth people did not have chimneys; they built their fires in a round hearth in the middle of the room, and when chimneys were introduced, the old-fashioned folk all grumbled, because, they said, smoky air was good for colds. But to the eastward stoves of brick and porcelain were commonly used.A stove made of brick is used in Russia, and in it a slow fire burns all night long. On top of it, when night comes, the peasant and his whole family, in their sheepskins, lie down and go to sleep. It is nice and warm, rather like a window seat that is over a radiator, and sometimes there is a second shelf overhead for any stranger who may be staying overnight.The brick stove of the Russian peasant, in all probability, came overland from China too long ago to talk about, for the Chinese have stoves of brick and clay shaped something like it.In Japan there is not much need of keeping warm, but whatever stoves
there are in a Japanese home are low, for the life here is all carried on sitting or kneeling on the floor. There is a rough clay stove, made especially for the great rice kettle, that costs only a few cents, and when broken the poorest can buy another. There is a dainty little charcoal stove on which the cooking is done, and beside it stands a pretty basket filled with the softest and finest charcoal. There is also a small stove or furnace to heat the water for the bath. And still more odd is the little earthen bed-stove, used as we use a hot-water bottle, shaped like a curled-up cat, and it is called "neko" (the kitten).The German stove of porcelain, with its curious decorations, has figured in many a story of German life. A porcelain stove will hold the heat a long time and keep a room warm with but little attention.In Holland, where the working people are often at home for a little while at noon, they have the most thrifty arrangement of all—that might be called a portable stove, a stove in an iron bucket. When the children come home from school and the older people from work at noon, instead of lighting the kitchen fire, one of the children takes the fire bucket and trots around the corner to the fire-woman's. The bucket is just large enough to hold a piece of burning peat or some live coals, and a teakettle sits on top. The old woman who sells fire and hot water fills the bucket and kettle for a tiny sum, and the child goes home with just enough fire and water enough for the family dinner.Charcoal is commonly used for cooking in France, Italy and Spain, because it makes a small, hot fire. The Italian keeps warm (or says he does) over a small fire of what we would call an earthen hand-warmer with coals in it, called scaldino. Only within the last few years has it been possible to find rooms that were heated on the American plan anywhere in Europe.
The people keep warmer in this country than in any other spot on the surface of the globe in the temperate or trigid zone.

Carbon in Gravity Cells.

Carbon can be used instead of copper in gravity cells with good results.
Several carbons should be removed from worn-out dry cells, thoroughly cleaned and connected together. After a few hours of short circuit a coating of copper from the copper sulphate solution will form on the carbon surface which will perform the function of the usual copper electrode very well. It must be understood, however, that a loss of efficiency will result, as carbon has much greater resistance than copper.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

"Dorr's Rebellion."
From 1663 the people of Rhode Island had lived under a charter granted by Charles II, according to which only those owning a certain amount of property could vote. A desire to change this provision arose and in 1841 two parties were in the field, the "Suffrage" and the "Law and Order." Each party determined to control affairs. Each elected its own state officers. Thomas W. Dorr was chosen governor by the "Suffrage" party. He took possession of the state arsenal. The militia was called and he was forced to flee. In a second attempt the party was downed by United States troops and Dorr was arrested, convicted of treason and sentenced to life imprisonment, but soon was pardoned. This was Dorr's rebellion. A free constitution was adopted by the people while Dorr was imprisoned.

Unusual Offer To Our Readers

For a limited time, and subject to withdrawal after 30 days, the well-known publishing house of the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, founded in 1792, offers to the readers of this paper a 12 months' subscription to "Lippincott's Magazine," a 12 year's subscription to the Kentuckian, both for $3.00. This is the price of a twelve months' subscription to "Lippincott's" alone. Additional to obtaining every issue of this paper for a year, our readers will receive in "Lippincott's" 12 great complete novels by popular authors, 105 short stories, crisp, entertaining, original, 45 timely articles from the pens of masters, and each month some excellent poems with the right sentiment, and "Walnuts and Wine," the most popular humor section in America. To obtain this extraordinary offer prompt action is necessary. Remit to J. B. Lippincott Company, Washington Square, Philadelphia, Pa.

Delights of Camel Riding.
It was my first experience of camel riding, and therefore interesting, if not altogether charming. The saddles used in this country are formed of large pads, one in front and one behind the hump. The driver climbs into place in front, with a huge peaked pad to keep him from falling off when the camel rises. Then the passenger mounts behind the hump, and the camel is with difficulty persuaded to rise. This he does hind-quarters first, and the passenger finds himself thrust up in midair as if on a tower. The huge pad offers no possible support, and he can scarcely overcome his desire to prevent a fall by putting his feet on the driver's shoulders. That worthy, however, soon comes up to join him, and the expedition starts. The first sensation is of being astride a table, and as the miles go by the table increases alarmingly in width, and the tyro on the back seat begins to despair of ever getting his legs acquainted again.—Wide Awake Magazine.

Not the Thing.
"Here's the sea captain we met the other day passed us without so much as a nod. Does he not know that good manners compel at least a bow when he meets us?" "You couldn't persuade a sailor, sis, that a bow is a stern necessity."

LONDON'S OLDEST IRISH RELIC

History of Stone in Coronation Chair Can Be Traced Back for Many Centuries.

The oldest Irish historical relic in London is the stone believed to be the "Lia Fail" in the coronation chair in Westminster abbey, according to the Irish World. It will be remembered that it was most certainly the coronation stone of the old Scottish kings, and it has been in the abbey since Edward I brought it from Scone, where King Kenneth, in the ninth century, transferred it from Argyllshire. It had been then used as a coronation stone since Fergus, the son of Eric, brought it first from Ireland, and the tradition was that it had been the coronation stone of the Irish kings on the hill of Tara.

Old legend, indeed, gave the coronation stone a greater antiquity and declared it to be the very stone which formed "Jacob's pillow." The authentic record of the stone is, however, perfect to the days when it was first taken from Ireland. It is spoken of as being in Westminster abbey, but it isn't. Like other irreplaceable objects, art treasures and historic relics, it has been removed, together with the chair which it has enriched, to a place of safety from Zeppelin bombs. It will be remembered that tradition says that where the stone is the ruling power of the Scot, that is the Irish, will be found.

John Denver, in his "Old Rebel," tells an amusing story of a simple-minded Fenian who conceived the idea of carrying off the stone from the abbey to Ireland and the settling of the whole "Irish question" at a stroke.

BEHIND THE SCENES

"What's the trouble?"
"I can't keep my people down to their own lines of work. The prima donnas will kick and the ballet won't."

TREES AS WINDMILLS.

A growing eucalyptus, partly cleared of leaves and branches, has been used as a windmill tower by a California farmer. In search of good running water, the farmer found a spring underneath a grove of eucalyptus trees. It was found that in order to erect a windmill standard over the spring it would be necessary to sacrifice the beautiful trees. Finally solving the problem of building the windmill without destroying the trees, he mounted the fan on one of the central trees. Clearing away much of the foliage on the nearest trees, he ran braces to the windmill, and secured a machine which has given him entire satisfaction.—Popular Science Monthly.

BOY OF 6 TRIES SUICIDE

Pulls the Trigger of Rifle With His Foot.

Columbus, Ind., March 6.—Howard the 6-year-old son of Harry Goeller, shot himself this evening with a rifle and it is believed the shooting was done with suicidal intent. The boy left the supper table and going into a bedroom, loaded the rifle and shot himself in the abdomen. He is believed to have pulled the trigger with his foot. The boy is in a critical condition.

Most Valuable Metal.

In estimating the value of any metal we are apt to consider only the intrinsic money value of a given quantity, and from this view gold is generally regarded as the most valuable metal. But this is a mistaken notion. Value consists not merely in pound for pound money worth, but ought to include full consideration of serviceability and usefulness.

Taking these into account, a scientific writer points out that iron is the most valuable metal, because of the many different ways in which it is of great service to man. In this respect it is of the greatest value, and the world is fortunate in the great amount of it available.

Gave Up Struggle.

Mrs. Ella Greene, 60, committed suicide at her home in Mt. Sterling, Ky., by jumping into a cistern. An invalid daughter attempted to prevent the deed by clinging to her mother's skirts, but could do nothing. Several men who were crossing the fields saw the deed, but they arrived too late to save the woman. Worry over her daughter's condition and the fact that they had had no food for twenty-four hours is given as the cause for the act.

Methodist Church.

PICTURE SHOWS NEXT WEEK.

REX MONDAY.

Paramount presents the popular screen favorite Marguerite Clark in 5 acts, "Wildflower." This is an exceptionally good drama and critics declare this to be one of the best pictures Miss Clark ever appeared in. Monday.

REX TUESDAY.

Pathe presents Dorothy Donnelly and an all star cast in "Madame X." Every mother who ever loved a son, and every son who ever loved a mother will want to see "Madame X." The genius of Bisson, the author, coupled with the extraordinary emotional art of Miss Donnelly have made a picture which throbs with pathos and glows with mother love. Tuesday.

PRINCESS WEDNESDAY.

Mutual Masterpiece DeLuxe, "The Seventh Noon," featuring the famous screen star Ernest Glendenning. In five acts. A thrilling drama of love and intrigue.

REX WEDNESDAY.

Paramount presents Lou Tellegen in a picturization of the popular play "The Explorer." A startling story of love and honor. Wednesday.

REX THURSDAY.

Paramount presents the international star Elsie Janis in 5 acts, "Twins Ever Thus" with an all star cast including Hobart Bosworth, Owen Moore and Myrtle Stedman. Beginning when a lithe, bare limbed girl in a panther skin, races in and out through the rocks and finally darts into a great cave grimly pursued by her Cave-Man Lover.

PRINCESS FRIDAY.

William Fox presents William Farnum, the most eminent and popular of all screen stars in "The Wonderful Adventure." A photodrama of modern life and dual personalities, wonderful and compelling. Friday.

PRINCESS SATURDAY.

Universal presents Hobart Bosworth in five acts, "The Little Brother of the Rich," an intense and heart gripping drama. Saturday.

Salt put in hot water will make it hotter as it makes cold water colder.

PURELY PERSONAL.

Mr. Geo. C. Long, President of the First National Bank, and Mrs. Long have returned from a month's stay in Florida.

Hal Brownell, of Adairville, Ky., spent Thursday in the city. He has married since he was here last and is engaged in teaching in the Logan county schools.

Mrs. Laurie Holland has returned from Orlando, Fla., and is at her home in Gracey.

Miss Minnie Yonts has returned from New York, where she went to prepare for the spring season in her dressmaking business.

Sam Frankel is back from the Eastern markets having mixed a good deal of pleasure with business. He had a fine time and laid in an immense stock of spring goods.

Dr. Lewis Powell, who spent last week in Florida was at Aberdeen, Miss., Wednesday and will be home tonight.

Dr. S. P. Quisenberry, who is now practicing dentistry at Cerulean, will shortly return to this city and open an office in the Odd Fellows building.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira S. Ferguson, who has been very ill with pneumonia, is reported to be much better.

PEMBROKE FIRE

Family Aroused At 1 A. M. By House On Fire.

The old Baptist parsonage on North Main street, a two-story house owned by C. G. Vass and occupied by Mr. Scott, was burned at an early hour yesterday in Pembroke. Mr. Scott was aroused by the fire at 1 a. m. and he and his family barely had time to get out. Practically everything they had was burned. The loss is about $1800 or $2000.

ORIGINAL STORY.

Once upon a time there lived a man and his wife, who sometimes disagreed. It was Mr. and Mrs. Noah.

One day they started down the road to a field. Mr. Noah, because very thirsty, sat down on a rock and asked his wife to bring him a fresh drink of water, which she refused to do. She in place accused him of being very lazy, a thing that naturally made him angry.

"Now I'll sit here on this rock until you bring me the water," said Mr. Noah.

"You will sit there for a long time," replied his wife. Well he sat there we know, for until this very day the rock on which he sat can be seen.

After quite a lengthy discussion he said, "Now to repay you for your disobedience, I am going to make this a beautiful place. On the hillside trees shall grow, from underneath this rock a crystal spring shall gush forth, but remember, you are never to drink here and never to rest in this shady nook."

"Little do I care," responded Mrs. Noah, "I shall go away from here and make a place that will be more admired than this place." With these words she left him.

She started on her journey Northward, and after traveling for several miles she came to a large cherry tree. Here she sat down to rest, all the while wondering what she could do. Then a new idea came to her.

"I shall turn this valley into a great pond, and in this pond many fish shall live, this cherry tree shall bear abundantly, and people for miles around shall come and gather fruit. This shall be called 'Cherry Bottom.'"

Then Mrs. Noah fell into a deep slumber, and as she slumbered all she had wished for came true. When she awoke she had been transformed into a crow.

As Mr. Noah sat on the rock in the hot sun, growing angrier all the time, he was thinking that his wife, through sympathy, would finally come with the water. During his weary waiting he too fell asleep; and as he slept, the creek and spring were formed, the trees had grown tall and beautiful. When he awoke he had likewise been turned into a crow.

He opened his eyes, looked at the beautiful scenery, flopped his wings and flew to a tree near by. Just then he saw something soaring high into the heavens and then in curiosity he followed the object. When he came near he recognized it as his wife.

"Caw, caw, caw, go back to your rock," she cried.

"Caw, caw, caw, shut your mouth I'll do as I please, but I see a great pond below and I'm thirsty. I shall fly down, get a drink and then enjoy a few of those nice red cherries, while I rest."

"You eat of my cherries and drink that water you shall surely die. Go to your spring, rest and quench your thirst," said Mrs. Noah.

"Oh! I was only joking," said he. "I'm not joking," she replied, "Be gone to your beautiful spring." He went but against his wishes.

The next time they met they were more friendly.

He said with a smile, "Won't you come to my spring and live with me?" "No I will not," snapped Mrs. Noah.

"Then," said he, "I will come and live with you."

"But you have not asked my consent yet," she replied.

"Now let's reason a little my dear," he said. "You don't want to be a grass widow, nor do I want to be a grass widower, so now let's come together."

After much consideration she consented to live with him again, but they could not decide to which place they should go. It was finally settled in this way. Each was to give the reasons why his place was the most desirable to live in, and the one showing the best reasons should rule.

This is what she claimed. "I furnished a place for enjoyment, fishing, swimming and boating in summer and skating in winter."

"So do I furnish a place for enjoyment," replied Mr. Noah. "This is picnic grounds in summer and the scenery is beautiful. I have a matrimonial parlor, just think of the hearts that have been united at this place."

"Yes, you can always manage to get some one into trouble," replied Mrs. Noah.

"I have caused this land to blossom as a rose; to my right the beautiful little village of Howell has grown up, nearer to me, a handsome mansion has been erected, and to my left has been chosen the site for the great Howell High School."

"Well replied Mrs. Noah, 'I realize that you are by far my superior and I will come and live with you.'"

Thus were formed Noah's Spring and Cherry Bottom Pond, which are recognized here from ocean to ocean and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, as two of the Seven Wonders of the world. BERNICE SMITHSON.

PRINCESS TO-DAY

"REGENERATION."

Big Scene on Burning Excursion Boat Furnishes Thrills in "Regeneration." During the course of the making of the picture, "The Regeneration," which is the picturized version of "The Regeneration," Owen Kildare's story of Mamie Rose, and which is being presented by William Fox, it was necessary to take the scene of the burning of an excursion boat. "Skinny the Rat," who was one of the hero worshippers of Owen Kildare, in order to get even with some of his enemies, did so burning up an excursion boat. All this is perfectly portrayed in "The Regeneration." Director Walsh at great expense, secured an old-fashioned barge and hundreds of Bowery characters, men and women and took the entire party—nearly 800 strong—up to Glen Cove on the East river, where it consumed an entire day to film this one scene at an unusually large cost. It is predicted that this scene will be one of the sensations of this big feature picture.

All of those who heard "The Imperial Marimba Musical Troupe" say it is the most wonderful music ever heard in this city. They will appear again, to-day two shows and to-night two shows. The small price of admission of 10 and 15 cents will never be regretted. Hear them to-day.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

NATIVE OF FRANKFORT.

Dr. W. L. Rodman, aged 58, president of the American Medical Association, died of pneumonia Wednesday in Philadelphia, where he had resided sixteen years. He was a nephew of the late Dr. James Rodman, of Hopkinsville, and read medicine under his uncle while the latter was superintendent of the Western Kentucky Hospital for the Insane near this city, 40 years ago. One day the young doctor undertook to give some medicine to his uncle's little daughter and by mistake gave laudanum and in spite of all that could be done after the mistake was discovered, the child died. The affair so prostrated the young man with grief that he left soon afterwards and after living at Louisville a while finally located in Philadelphia, where he rose to distinction in his profession. Dr. Rodman was elected president of the American Medical Association by 76,000 practicing physicians at San Francisco last June in recognition of his brilliant work in surgery. He was considered the leading authority upon cancer in the country and was the author of several textbooks upon the subject, which are used in leading medical schools.

EVERY VERMONT COUNTY VOTES FOR LOCAL OPTION

Prohibition Defeated by Majority of 13,164 Votes.

Rutland, Vt., March 10.—Local option won over prohibition in this state by a margin of 13,164 votes. The prohibitory amendment was first placed on the statute books in 1852 and was repealed in 1903 by a majority of 729. The vote on the question of re-enacting the amendment was: Aye, 18,503; nay, 31,667.

Every county in the state, with the exception of Orleans, gave a majority in favor of local option.

Howe-Hewitt Wedding.

In the parlors of the Immanuel Baptist church, yesterday at 1:30 o'clock, the marriage of Miss Mildred Elizabeth Hewitt and Mr. Carl Livingston Howe took place. The ceremony was quietly solemnized and was presided over by Dr. Rufus Weaver. The guests of the occasion included only the members of the families.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hewitt and is a girl of unusual popularity. She was very charmingly dressed for her wedding in a street costume of blue cloth and smart hat that completed the modish appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe left yesterday for Memphis, where they will be the guests of Mr. Howe's sister, Mrs. Clark Thompson. They will return to Nashville to reside and will be located at 1021 Fifteenth avenue, south. Both Mr. Howe and his bride are widely known and have many friends who will be interested in learning of their marriage. Mr. Howe is prominently connected with the Southern Ice company.—Friday's Tennessean.

Mr. Howe is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Howe, who formerly lived in Hopkinsville, and is a grandson of Mrs. E. W. Henderson.

An Average Zeppelin Raid.

The reports of the latest Zeppelin raid over England show as killed three men, four women and five children. Of the total number killed, three-fourths were persons who could not have taken arms against Germany while this war can last, and most of them never could have taken arms. Not one of them actually was a soldier, and it is probable that even the three men killed were incapacitated for military duty.

The result of that raid was about the average result of Zeppelin raids. The Zeppelin, as an implement of war, can never justify itself on that sort of showing. The nation that uses the Zeppelin as an implement of war can never justify itself in using it. The killing of women and children is the most brutal of savagery.—Tennessean.

Poultry Talks.

Prof. D. D. Slade visited the county this week to talk poultry to the clubs and especially to the ladies. An interesting meeting was held at the H. B. M. A. Thursday afternoon and another at Van Cleve's school house at night. Mr. Slade and Mr. Casey went to the country yesterday. Mr. Slade left last night.

Refused a position as superintendent of the Paduch public schools in 1898 and now the foremost educator in the West is the strange yet true experience of Dr. Charles Evans, brother of Thomas Evans, proprietor of a Paducah drug store. Dr. Evans only recently assumed the presidency of the Harry Kendall College, at Tulsa, Okla., after having served four years as president of the Central State Normal College, at Edmond, Okla., says the News Democrat. His wonderful rise in educational work, coming as it did after he was turned down as superintendent of the Paducah schools, makes his career of interest in Paducah, and friends who knew the educator are showering congratulations upon his brother in Paducah. OPPORTUNITY TO GET EVEN Farmer Had It in His Heart to Do Unto Others as It Had Been Done Unto Him.

Here is a good motor story: A farmer strolled into a motor sales-house. "What's that worth?" he asked, pointing to a small car. "Five hundred dollars," was the reply. "And that?" pointing to a better car.

"Seven hundred and fifty dollars." "And that there one?" pointing to a seven-passenger with a jerk of his thumb.

"That one is a fine car and is worth twelve hundred dollars." "I'll take it," said the farmer. "The car is cash, you know," said the salesman.

"Yes, I got the money," said the farmer, as he pulled a roll of bills out of his pocket, peeled off twelve one-hundred-dollar bills, and paid for the car. "Now, you'll show me how to drive the critter?"

"Sure," said the salesman, "that's a part of the sale."

So they started out, and after going three miles overtook a man in a wagon with a mule team. The salesman tooted and honked, and tooted, but the man with the mules refused to heed. Finally the farmer said:

"This is my car, ain't it?"

"It is," said the salesman.

"And I paid for it?"

"You did."

"Then," said the farmer, "you run right over that sunnavagun; that's the way automobile drivers always done with me!"—Toronto (Kan.) Republican.

PUT HEALTH IN FIRST PLACE

Present Generation of Youth in Many Ways an Improvement Over Those of the Past.

Our young people in their habits and tastes cherish and crave and admire health with a devotion unparalleled since the days of the Greeks, writes Francis Greenwood Peabody in the Atlantic Monthly. The call of the fields and of the wild, the inoculation of early childhood with the fever of athletics, and the enormous distinction obtained by strength, agility and pluck—even the unprecedented candor of literature and conversation concerning sex, parenthood, eugenics and feminism—all these signs of the time, though they may involve new risks, unquestionably free young people in large degree from the introspection, sentimentalism, morbid conscientiousness, prudishness and prurience, which have afflicted earlier generations. Fearless, self-confidence, even audacity, issue from this healthiness. Nothing is too personal to be mentioned; nothing too startling to be welcomed; nothing too sacred to be criticized. The most repelling of traits is sickness, either of body or of mind. Strong doctrine, naked truth, undisguised convictions, are marks of the cult of healthiness, and the resultant type of youth is one which cannot be observed without admiration, as one watches an athlete stripped for his game and rejoicing in his strength.

No Two Faces Alike.

The boss barber, who worked at the first chair in a Broadway shop in the intervals when he wasn't panning the cash register, stepped over to an old customer who had just entered and said in a low tone: "Your regular barber is sick today. Try that man on the fourth chair. He's a good shaver." "He is not," said the customer. "I've tried him. Guess I'll let 'em grow until tomorrow." "To tell the truth," said the boss, "I can't tell which of my barbers are good. The other day I was shaving a man who told me that man on the fourth chair was the best barber he'd ever struck. But I also have heard men say, like you, that he was a bum workman. It's the same about all the men in this shop. I suppose we lose a lot of trade because men go too much on their first impressions of barbers. But what can I do? Shall I fire that barber who he says nearly scraped his face off? Of course not. That's the sort I'm up against all the time: It's because no two faces are alike."

Widow's Lucky Find.

Ever put your hand in the pocket of a castoff garment you are about to give the ragman and pull out a $20 bill that's been hiding from you? Those who have known the joy it brings. But what must have been the feelings of the Jersey woman who, while going through her late husband's effects, found a bank book showing that he had deposited $73 in a bank in 1854 and had left it there undisturbed? She may now collect from that institution $1,620—a neat sum for a rainy spell of weather. Some women under the same circumstances could almost forgive their husbands for shuffling off.

POULTRY FACTS

PLAN FOR HARD-SHELL EGGS

Mineral Elements Necessary Are Available in Much Cheaper Form Than in Feeding Grains.

The feeding of hens for the production of hard-shelled eggs, not easily breakable in handling, is possible and demands attention. Shells vary greatly in strength. A strong, heavy shell is not nearly so likely to be broken by the jars, jolts and rough handling incident to ordinary shipment as a weak one.

Chemical analysis shows that the shell of the egg is largely carbonate of lime, but that it also contains carbonate of magnesia, mineral phosphate and some organic matter. If strong shells are to be produced, the mineral elements must not be lacking. Grains that are ordinarily fed do not contain these mineral elements in sufficient proportions, and an additional and separate supply is necessary. Fortunately, these mineral elements are available in much cheaper forms than in grains. Lime is the principal ingredient of oyster shells. Iron, magnesia and often phosphorus in many kinds of artificial grit, may be procured for about the same price, while these elements in grain would cost at least double these figures.

Bone meal contains phosphorus in appreciable amounts, besides lime, magnesia, etc., and while expensive, it is effective in giving the shell an evenness and fineness of texture which adds much to its strength. It is, therefore, often used as an ingredient for dry mashes for laying flocks, usually in amount varying from three to five per cent.

Eggs that won't break give the poultryman greater profits than eggs that will. Make your hens lay the non-breakable kind.

FEATHER DUSTER AS BROODER

Feathers Are Arranged in Center of Box to Take Place of Those of the Mother Hen.

A very effective brooder can be made of an old feather duster hung in a box so that the tips of the feathers will come close to the bottom. The brooder consists of a wood box about one foot high. This cover is removed, and a hole cut in the center to receive the shank of the duster after cutting its handle off, writes William T. Miller of Roslindale, Mass., in Popular Mechanics. This makes an excellent substitute for the feathers of the hen. Some finely cut hay, or sand, is placed beneath so as to bring the level up sufficiently for the chicks to run among the feathers. For ventilation, bore some holes in the sides of the box near the top and cut a small opening for an entrance. For convenience in cleaning, the cover should be hinged.

WINTER FEED FOR THE HENS

Warm, Soft Mash Sometimes Have Effect of Making Fowls Lazy—Feed Sparingly in Morning.

Amateurs sometimes are puzzled to know how much to feed when throwing grain in the litter and are prone to overfeed, making it so easy for the hens to fill their crops that they will not work long. If a dry mash is kept before the hens at all times, the poultrykeeper may comfort himself with the thought that his birds need never go hungry even if they have difficulty in finding the grain they need to satisfy themselves.

The use of warm, soft mash sometimes has the effect of making hens lazy. If a heavy feeding of mash is given in the morning, the hens will fill up on that and then stand around for several hours. If the amount of mash is made so small that their hunger is not satisfied, no damage will result.

A mash at the close of day is not advisable, but it may be given an hour or two before roosting time and followed with a feeding of whole corn. The corn will almost always be eaten, in spite of the mash feed just consumed, and the hens will go to roost with full crops, the digestion of the two kinds of feed taking a long time.

Demand for Hen Turkeys.

In marketing turkeys the hen turkey is more in demand than the male turkey. The market likes medium-sized turkeys. On some markets a 15-pound turkey or over must await special customers, but a 10-pound turkey finds a ready buyer.

Cure Feather-Eating Habit.

A feather-eater is seldom a male bird, but he suffers most from feather-eating. Burning the end of the bill, a cruel method, is recommended as a cure; also adding a teaspoonful of salt to each two quarts of meat, is another.

KNOW NOTHING OF RESULTS

Men in the Submarines Simply Obey Orders That Are Given by the Commander.

In the Berliner Tageblatt Herr Arnold Hoelriegel tells of a trip to the Austrian submarine which torpedoed the Italian submarine Medusa.

"I was in the interior of this famous U-boat," he writes. "The big blond lieutenant showed me every part of the delicate machinery and explained how the torpedo is loaded and fired. I was amazed at the amount of metal and glass and wire and pipe in that comparatively small space in which there is scarcely room to move about."

"The lieutenant told me the story of an accident to the machinery, as a result of which they never expected to come to the surface again. They were 20 hours under water, and during that time the engineer and mechanic worked without a moment's respite to repair the break."

"All hope had been abandoned and the crew were breathing heavily in the vitiated atmosphere, when suddenly the submarine began to rise slowly, and when it reached the surface all hands went on deck to breathe the fresh air."

"Describing the sinking of the Medusa the lieutenant said:

"We were lying outside the harbor of Venice in smooth water. The commander had his eyes glued to the periscope. We, of course, see nothing and all we do is carry out his orders."

"Suddenly we begin to maneuver. Evidently something is about to occur. Only a small part of the periscope is above the water; then we dive again."

"Presently we can hear the sound of another motor in our vicinity. The commander shouts the order to have our torpedo ready. Quick and willing hands respond. The order is given to fire, and the deadly instrument speeds on its way. We hear the explosion, but whether we hit the mark we were, of course, unable to tell, as we quickly turned and sped away."

FIXED PRICE ON NECESSARIES

Warring European Nations Compelled to Arbitrarily Regulate the Cost of Foodstuffs.

Practically all the governments in Europe have, since the war, put in force regulations concerning the prices of foodstuffs.

Some governments, while allowing the local authorities to fix prices on most things, issued decrees applicable to their whole territory concerning a few highly important articles. Thus Austria and Germany both prescribed the proportion of wheat or rye flour that should be used in making bread. Later both Austria and Germany fixed the wholesale price of cereals, and brought the distribution and consumption of flour and bread under strict control.

Turkey fixed prices for petroleum, sugar, and flour. In Italy salt, tobacco and matches are government monopolies, so that their prices were fixed by the central authority. Denmark, Holland and Switzerland limited themselves to controlling the most important breadstuffs of each country.

Neutrality in Saloniki.

A correspondent of the London Daily Sketch gives a description of Saloniki, which he pictures as a town of odd contrasts in these days in which Greek neutrality is on the edge of the boiling pot. He says: "Bulgarian and Turkish consuls lunch together every day in a restaurant surrounded by scores of British and French officers. Every Friday the Ottoman consulate flaunts the standard of the Crescent in the teeth of the entente battleships, which look on with complete indifference. Restaurants, cafes and hotels are, of course, making 'updraft' of profits. In the gulf, within sight of the quay, lies a heterogeneous fleet of ships of all the allied powers, with a great throng of transports, hospital ships, supply ships, tugs, lighters, reproducing aloft the medley that prevails ashore."

A Soldier's Decalogue.

Here are the "Soldier's Ten Commandments":

Thou shalt not use profane language except . . . on seeing thy comrade shot or getting petrol in thy tea.

Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; on the seventh do all thy odd jobs.

Keep thy rifle oiled, and shoot straight that thy days may be long in the land the enemy giveth thee.

Thou shalt not kill—time.—From "Soldiers' Stories of the War," by Walter Wood.

Book of Books.

American-made Bibles are reported as now the "best sellers" among all books. It is estimated that the year now closing will show an increase of 50 per cent in the sale of our Bibles over the best previous year's record. The war has interfered with the printing of Bibles in the countries affected, hence the demand for the American product.

MATERNAL INSTINCT IS ALIVE

Not Necessarily Abandoned by Women Who Have Chosen to Pursue a "Career."

We often hear that women used to be more maternal than they are now. The difference was that they had larger families and were compelled to do more work about the house, because modern household conveniences were then wanting, asserts Dr. Mary Kent Isham, a successful New York physician. The fact of a large family is not necessarily an indication that there is much maternal feeling in the mother. The maternal instinct is found in women who want children—whether they have them or not—and who occupy themselves preferably in ways which deal with the young.

The majority of single women and of women with careers do not lack the maternal spirit and do not lack the sex instinct, but they are wanting in a certain recklessness which would enable them to accept the wrong husband or go in for what has been called "unbridled motherhood." They are perhaps trained into too great self-control and caution. Others are too intense and passionately maternal to marry. They must have whole crowds of children with whom to deal, like the old woman in the shoe. The husband is a secondary consideration. A large number of women who are engaged in social service and who, for various reasons, have been deprived of homes of their own, or find the duties in their homes too limited, are spending their generous helping of maternal energy in a larger social field.

SWEEPS DUST FROM RECORDS

Automatic Cleaner for the Phonograph
That Will Save Much Time and Labor.

An automatic cleaner for phonograph records, invented by Joseph W. Pitcher of Washington, D. C., has just been patented. It consists of a ring that fits around the sound box, an arm extending downward therefrom just behind the needle, and a brush made of alternate layers of bristles and felt. The bristles engage the surface of the record first, removing dust from the lines, and the felt sweeps small particles out of the needle's way.

SHOOK PEARLS FROM GOWN

One Woman at Least Who Believed That Tight Styles Are Strictly
All Right.

Persons in the rose room of the Astor, one night recently, were interested when they heard a pretty woman with diamonds glistening on dainty hands say:

"The pearls have gone—the string snapped in two."

She wore a coat with a moleskin collar; the New York Herald states. Her husband suggested that she take off her coat. She then tugged on the end of a string and brought forth a sad looking affair—six pearls left at the end of the necklace. After standing up once or twice and engaging the attention of a waiter she brought forth a handful of pearls by the time her husband returned from a telephone call.

"Good thing this dress was tight," she laughed.

They proceeded to count the pearls before they ate soup and it was the consensus that three pearls had strayed from the string.

Again the pretty woman stood up shrugged her shoulders. Result, one more pearl. Two were missing. They ate their dinner, not forgetting the mishap, and started out of the dining room in Indian order, the woman first, then the husband, then the waiter who had aided in picking up pearls, and finally a head waiter. The waiters had orders to keep their eyes open for pearls.

Would the woman tell her name? No.

TO PROLONG LIFE OF GLASS

Simple Arrangement Which Requires
Only a Quantity of Stout But Pliable Wire.

Cups are often hung in china closets or in cupboards by hooks, thus prolonging their lives by keeping them out of harm's way. A device for securing the same safety for glasses should, it would seem, also meet with popular approval.

A device has been placed on the market which will meet with much favor. It is very simple and can be made at home if one will but secure some stout though pliable wire. The wire is fastened to the wall with a screw or staple and then twisted to the shape shown in the sketch.

Vain Hope.

"Everybody says I'm light on my feet, father," said the gilded youth.

"Umph," replied the disappointed parent, who didn't raise his boy to be a dancer. "I wouldn't go so far as to wish you had been born clubfooted, son, but I do wish your head was heavy enough to act as a sort of drag to your feet."

HOPEFUL FELLOW.

"Have you seen any conspicuous examples of optimism lately?"

"Yes. I noticed one this morning."

He—Indeed, we had only been talking of spiritualistic experiments, and we were just sitting around the table holding hands.

"Why, do you make your wife do all the carving at dinner?"

"Why not? Oughtn't a wife to be a help meat?"

MISAPPREHENSION.

"It was a driving rain that brought us back."

"Why, what were you doing with reins in driving an auto?"

MUTUAL SUSPICION.

She—Weren't they married in rather a hurry?

NEW YORKERS READ BOOKS

Not So Much to Pass an Idle Hour, but to Obtain Instruction, According to Library Statistics.

With cabarets, dancing, theaters and all kinds of amusements to lure New Yorkers, no one would ever give this city credit for being the literary center, a New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch writes. There are more book-lovers in this town than in any other city in the world. This may cause a smile, but facts prove the assertion. The annual report of the New York public library shows that the year's circulation of books is close to eleven million volumes. It is the opinion of those in charge of the public libraries, than whom there are no better judges, no better instructors, that New York today is reading not merely for pleasure or amusement, but for instruction. Statistics gathered by the central library show that New York is reading less to pass an idle hour or two—the book of a day, so to speak—than it has at any time before. It has learned how to read. In other words, it has acquired the art of reading, which is the secret of reading. According to the librarians, the New York reader of the present is not only deriving pleasure from a good book, but mental food. Their tastes run to books on sociology, to poetry, to drama and to arts. There is also a great demand for Shakespeare's works, Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Stevenson and all the so-called standard authors. An interesting phase showing the bent of the mind of New York's readers is noted by library officials in the increased demand for books on art, especially as to interior household decoration. It is not only the women who require these books, but more particularly the men.

WILL IRRIGATE VAST TRACT

Engineers Plan Irrigation Scheme in India That is of Enormous Importance to Country.

The great irrigation scheme known as the Punjab Triple canal is now nearing completion. This enormous system will irrigate about two millions of acres in the central Punjab. It appears that in the Punjab two crops are grown in the year, the kharif or summer crop, from April to September, and the rabi or winter crop, from October to March. The melting of the Himalayan snows and the monsoon afford abundant water for the first of these, but not for the rabi, which is the more valuable of the two crops. Transfer of water from west to east has therefore become essential. This supply has to be carried from the Jhelum river across two other great and widely separated rivers, the Chenab and Ravi; and across numerous formidable hill torrents. So complete is the scheme that flour mills are actually provided at the important falls, to use the power which would otherwise run to waste. There are 22,645 miles of channels for irrigating purposes in the entire system. The total cost is estimated at $35,000,000.

LAY CRITICISM.

"Do you go to the theater for amusement or instruction?"

"Solely for amusement," answered the man whose hair was thin on top.

"Then you don't care for the work of playwrights with a 'message'?"

"Not particularly. It always seemed to me that a man with a 'message' ought to be willing to deliver it free of charge."

WHY HE CAME.

Landlady (delighted)—And so Doctor Curren advised you to come here?

THE DISTINCTION.

HIS PRESENT MISSION.

"Pa, what is a peacemaker?"

STRONG FOR BOND ISSUE

The Tobacco Board of Trade Gives Formal Endorsement.

The Hopkinsville Tobacco Board of Trade, realizing the great advantage to the farmers as well as to the tobacco business of this city, have added their hearty endorsement to the road bond proposition in this county. This endorsement is signed officially by the officers of the Tobacco Board of Trade and also by the individual members to show the united approval of the measure.

The resolution is as follows:

Hopkinsville, Ky.,

March 6th, 1916.

We, the undersigned members of the Hopkinsville Tobacco Board of Trade, heartily endorse the proposed bond issue of $400,000 for the purpose of building roads throughout the county. Realizing the vast importance of this movement, and believing this to be the golden opportunity for the people of Christian county to better conditions of themselves and their neighbors, and put old Christian in the forefront of the march of progress, we as a body of your citizens, promise our aid and assistance in every way possible to this movement of such vital importance to every citizen, and every business interest in the county. This is an opportunity that we will never have again and it behooves all public spirited citizens to be up and doing.

LOOKED DEATH IN THE FACE

Wednesday But Came Out Without Any Fatal Injuries.

John Martin, an L. & N. brakeman, whose home is on O'Neill avenue, in this city, narrowly escaped being killed at Springfield, Wednesday. He slipped and fell between the platform and the track as a train was passing and lay in a narrow space barely large enough for his body until twelve had passed. One shoulder was dislocated and he sustained many bruises, but no fatal injuries. He was brought home that night.

The Hopkinsville Spirit.

The good little city of Hopkinsville is full of boosters. There are no knockers in that burg. If one should get out a hammer, a stalwart booster would soon show where a hammer should be used.

There is another thing about Hopkinsville. There may be some jealousy between Hopkinsville and Bowling Green, although Hopkinsville will not acknowledge it. But with the enterprises of other towns around them Hopkinsville is always willing to lend a helping hand. This was evidenced a few days ago when a Bowling Green man went over to Hopkinsville on a visit. The plans for the great Pennyroyal Fair for the year have already been completed. Citizens asked the Bowling Green man about the Warren County Fair, and were much gratified to learn that the stock subscriptions had been raised. Proffers of suggestions and advice were given if needed. There was not the slightest spirit to show that the Warren County Fair might cut into the attendance and interest of the Pennyroyal Fair. Everybody was glad to know we had succeeded.—Bowling Green Messenger.

SPECIAL REGISTRATION.

Official notice is hereby given that a special registration will be held at the office of the county clerk on Monday, March 13, 1916, for the benefit of those voters of the city of Hopkinsville who are not duly registered at present or who have changed their residence since the last registration, and who wish to qualify for voting at the special election to be held on Saturday, March 18, 1916, on the proposition of issuing $400,000 in bonds for road and bridge purposes in Christian county. Voters who failed to register from any cause, if otherwise duly qualified, those who have come of age, those who have moved, etc., will be permitted to register for this special election.

L. J. HARRIS,
County Court Clerk
Christian County, Ky.

Wins Promotion.

William L. Evans, a former Hopkinsville boy, a son of Mrs. Lizzie Evans of this city, has been taken from the position of chief clerk in the L. & N. railroad office at Anniston, Ala., and promoted to Soliciting Agent at New Orleans. The promotion is a deserved one and is very gratifying to Mr. Evans' friends here.

Gasoline Advances.

With gasoline selling at twenty-four cents the gallon on the local market, and a flat advance of one cent the gallon over last week's quotations, garage men and dealers are beginning to wonder just how high the price will advance during the next few weeks. The present advance was not unexpected as dealers in gasoline have been in receipt of pessimistic reports for some time past.

Local automobilists are becoming aroused over the fact that there is no immediate decrease in price of gasoline in sight. Some members of the Henderson Automobile clubs are of the opinion that the matter will receive serious consideration at the next business meeting of the club.—Hen. Gleaner.

Attention T. P. A. Members.

Owing to the fact that several entertainments and meetings will be held Friday night, March 10th, which is the regular meeting night of Post J, we will postpone our meeting until next night, Saturday, March 11th, 7:30 p. m. Please be on hand that night, as it is the time for annual election of officers and delegates to State and National Conventions.

F. H. MASON, Secretary.

DEATH FROM PARESIS.

Made H. Edwards, of Webster county, a patient at the Western State Hospital, died Wednesday of paresis, aged 44 years. He had been in the institution about two years. The body was shipped to Seebree.

Tea leaves are gathered four times a year from the tea plant.

ONLY 16 ARMENIANS

LEFT OUT OF 40,000.

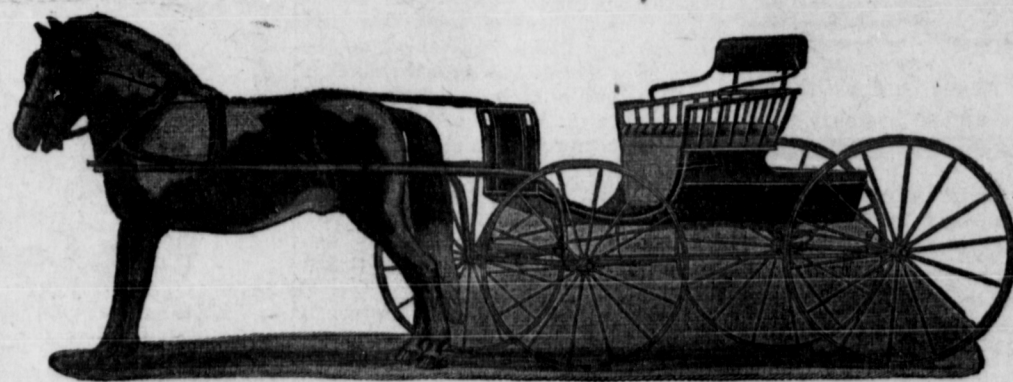

London, March 10.—The Russians found only sixteen Armenians alive in Erzerum out of the usual Armenian population of 40,000, according to information received in Petrograd and forwarded by Reuters correspondent in the Russian capital.

"The Turkish inhabitants of Erzerum," the correspondent adds, "stated that a few days before the capture of the fortress by the Russians all the Armenians in the town were driven out by the police in a westerly direction, where the Kurds, who had been forewarned, massacred them all."

Stork's Visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Boxley are parents of a son, who arrived Wednesday night.
